When Ann Hood met George Hodgman, she was a divorced mother of two in her 50s. He was a gay man in his 40s who had never been in a serious relationship. Despite their differences, they fell in love and built a life together that was full of love, laughter, and adventure.

In her memoir, Making Room for George, Ann Hood tells the story of their relationship, from their first meeting to their final days together. She writes about the challenges they faced, including George's HIV diagnosis and Ann's own struggles with depression. But she also writes about the joy and love that they shared, and the lessons they learned about life and love.

Making Room for George is a beautifully written and moving love story that will stay with you long after you finish reading it. It is a story about the power of love to overcome all obstacles, and the importance of living life to the fullest.
