loved working with the AANR staff who are a wonderful and committed group of people." Ever since the news came out about AANR firing Bill Schroer, there is endless speculation and yak about what occurred. There also have been a lot of personal attacks and claims about Bill that simply did not seem to add up. So naturally, I was very happy when Bill agreed to have a sit down with me (and clarify once and for all his perspective about what happened. In <https://s3.amazonaws.com/2021naturist/young-family-nudists.html> will do my best to describe the situation, problems, and correct any misconceptions that I've been able to validate centered on my conversation with Bill, together with other sources from within AANR (many of whom who were reluctant to be named or go on the record). What exactly really occurred? Let us begin from the day Bill's contract with AANR was terminated.

Beverly turned to Bill and merely said that AANR decided to terminate his employment contract - and that was that. Bill, quite shocked by her statement, didn't put up a fight nor argue. He simply recognized it, gathered his belongings, said goodbye to the staff and walked out.

Since Bill accepted what she said without the argument, I asked him to describe why. Here is what he said:

"I believe it's important to note that one reason I accepted this without resistance was that I believed, at the time, Beverly Pease had had a secret meeting with the Board and had the approval of the board to terminate me. It had not been until after I learned the board hadn't been educated. I may have responded differently had I known then what I know now."

Since, predicated on the AANR bylaws, only the board could terminate the ED's contract, I attempted to figure out why Beverly acted on her own, clearly in breach of AANR's own rules. Since <https://s3.amazonaws.com/2021naturist/nudism.html> had no information to provide, I had to look elsewhere to find the answer.

After some conversations with people within / close to AANR, I started to get the feeling that Beverly, for whatever reason, just decided that she no longer needed him there. That said, the Board had a scheduled meeting only a month away. Why not wait and present her case to the board? I just could not understand the rush to action, especially since that activity was in clear violation of AANR's own bylaws?

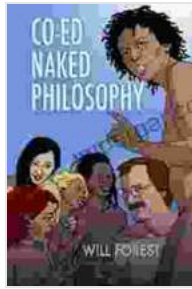

Not only did he feel that she'd not happen to be able to get the motion passed, he went on to say that based on his understanding / feeling, Beverly didn't need to have to justify her actions to the board with Bill in the room.

* Bill, nonetheless refused to suppose

This can be an indicator that about 30% didn't agree with her action and were brave enough to cast their vote in a style that represented their true feelings.
